Sat 1 Wait for the Lord; be strong and wait for the Lord (Psalm 27:14)
 Both today's readings – Jeremiah 26.11-16, 24 and Matthew 14.1-12 – invite us to think about the prophetic role of the church. It is very easy for us to think that the church is an institution that we have to feed – pouring all our best energies inwards to keep the show on the road.

That is a particular temptation now as we continue to learn to live with the impact of Covid-19. But the prophets – like Jeremiah, like John the Baptist – show us that the church is fundamentally a community facing outwards in love and prophetic service for others.

Today's first reading is Ecclesiastes 11.9 – 12.8. Ecclesiastes is often seen as a miserable book. "Vanity of vanities..." but in reality it is one of the most deeply human books in the Old Testament. It is part of the "Writings", the third part of the Hebrew Bible. That sits along side the Law (the Torah) and the Prophets (giving their commentary on what will happen if the nation disregards the Law).

The Writings are much more personal and invite us to reflect on what the Law means to us in our daily lives. And that's exactly where Ecclesiastes fits it. It invites us to recognise the human condition and its constraints as it is, and to yet live our lives fully, not anxious and not carried away by the false glamour of celebrity.

- Sat 8 Dominic, Priest, Founder of the Order of Preachers, 1221
Today's readings invite us to think about the word "faith". Habakkuk 1.12 – 2.4 ends with the powerful line "the righteous live by their faith" and Matthew 17.14-20 recounts a healing by Jesus which the disciples "because of your little faith". When we use "faith" in daily life, we naturally take it to mean "trust". If I say, "I believe in you", I do not mean that I believe that you exist but that I trust you.

For some reason, when we use the word "faith" in worship and prayer, we immediately assume it means things I believe about God. That is a real misunderstanding – the primary meaning of the New Testament word we translate "faith" IS "trust". "I believe IN God" not about God. The God we know in Jesus Christ invites us into a relationship of trust.

Sat 19 Theodore of Tarsus, Archbishop of Canterbury, 690
 The Church of England takes quite a gentle line on saints – after all the New Testament just uses the word “saint” to mean a worshipping member of the Christian community. Heroes – as our time knows too well – almost always have clay feet.

But today the small commemoration of Theodore of Tarsus is worth a moment for reflection: a Greek travelling west because of the rise of Islam finds himself in his 60s unexpectedly appointed Archbishop of Canterbury, in a country he had never visited. And here he presides over one of the great flowerings of Christian thought and prayer.

Whatever stage or age we are at, it is always worth being ready for the second journey.

Sat 15 The Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary

Today is one of the ancient feasts of Mary, the mother of Jesus, and the day that marks the end of the Second World War in Japan, often known as VJ Day.

Both these commemorations are often forgotten – the first because some Christians are still uncomfortable with Mary; the second because we think too easily of VE Day as the end of the war, when of course it continued in south east Asia and Japan.

The invitation is to hold them together – Mary, who sings of the world being turned upside down by the birth of the child she is going to bear; and the end of a vast conflict that invites us to live by different values for the future.

Sat 22

In today's first reading (Ezekiel 43.1-7) Ezekiel has a vision of the glory of God returning to the Temple. In Ezekiel's radical theology this is not because the people have repented or because God thinks that they are going to behave any better, but simply because God is sovereign.

So there is an invitation for us to trust God more deeply. In the Gospel (Matthew 23.1-12) Jesus – a different kind of prophet – continues to denounce religious hypocrisy.

That is something we need to hear too – not because we can earn God's favour by our behaviour but because we can share the good news through how we live.

Sat 12

Jesus uses startling images to get his message across, and today (Luke 6.43-end) he takes a fantastic image straight from daily life: the house built on rock and the house built on sand. Many of us live in communities surrounded by building sites. From where this is being written you can hear and see three huge cranes in operation now!

A modern version of this parable might begin by reminding us that the average depth for the foundations of a modern house is 200 mm (less than 8 inches). That is quite a challenging metaphor. There are huge temptations to live life at a very superficial level, and Coronavirus has made that clear in surprising ways. Jesus invites us to "launch out into the deep" (Luke 5.4) – both with God and with our neighbour.

The Dioceses of Ottawa (Canada) and Central Buganda (Uganda)

The Fourteenth Sunday after Trinity: Today is Education Sunday

Lord God, we thank you for the education we have received from teachers and schools, from colleges, academies and universities, from parents and friends. Help us to support those who work in education, especially with the difficulties they have faced over the past months.

We appreciate the important job that they do in shaping the future of our world and remember them in our prayers.

*PRAY for The Anglican Church of South America,
The Most Revd Gregory James Venables, Presiding Bishop.*

Sat 5 In today's Gospel (Luke 6.1-5) Jesus is intentionally causing offence by breaking the Sabbath. But he is trying to teach religious zealots a lesson: that the Sabbath is intended to nourish human flourishing rather than place burdens on us.

Sabbath is the one commandment that Christians have traditionally ignored, and there is no such thing as a Christian "sabbath" as such. However, Jesus' words are equally for us – and invitation to see that if we are serious about human flourishing, then we need un-agenda-ed time.

Sat 29 The Beheading of St John the Baptist

“Consider your own call”, says Paul in today’s first reading (1 Cor 1.26-end). It is a fantastic phrase to spend some time with. We have all been through a complex time, and indeed are still living with the impact of Covid-19.

That has given a real opportunity for many people across the world to do precisely that: to consider our call. The word Paul uses for “consider” here could just as well be translated “pay attention”.

As we move forward and seek to discern where we are being called, we are invited to pay attention in four ways: to God, to ourselves, to those immediately in our care, and to the networks and communities that shape our lives.
